BLISS AT THE BEACH

The ultimate luxury vacation is one that's made to measure.

● Planning a trip is no longer a one-man operation. Gone are the days of embracing blind adventure, when the anticipation leading up to the vacation could be more exciting than the trip itself. A new kind of luxury travel—private destination clubs—offers a curated selection of plush residences where your holiday evolves into an immersive experience in a home away from home.

Since its launch in 2003, Exclusive Resorts—the leader in the destination-club field for the past decade—has crafted premium getaways for its 4,200 members to ensure every road is one less travelled, whether it's a sublime retreat to the Bahamas, a southern escape to Georgia or a trip down the Spanish coast.

"Time and time again, our incredible team has delivered the most precious thing in the world—perfect memories of incredible time spent with family and friends," says Steve Case, a co-founder of AOL.com and majority owner of Exclusive Resorts. Members of Exclusive Resorts enjoy privileged access to all kinds of perks, including a team of dedicated travel experts to prepare the most elite getaway.

From secluded beach houses to private islands, destination clubs take the guesswork out of your expectations and give you the go-ahead to escape with ease. Since a custom-tailored trip requires finely tuned details, most clubs—including Exclusive Resorts—employ a collective to research, test-drive and curate every aspect of your time away. Besides, trying the trip on for size is a must before serving it up on a silver platter. In addition to a comprehensive collection of destinations, luxury travel clubs can offer flexibility through their strategic partnerships with resort partners worldwide. The options are endless should you decide to spend Christmas in Paris next year or jet-set on a whim for a long weekend. For a gateway to vacation bliss this season, explore two of the most decadent offerings from the Exclusive Resorts portfolio spanning seven continents.

Exclusive Resorts recently unveiled the GATEWAY card for non-members in Canada, providing club access without the commitment.
